

Sanitation District to establish odor 'hotline'

Although a contract was awarded by the North San Mateo County Sanitation District for a project that may solve its sewage odor and noise problems, the district Board of Directors Monday decided there also should be a hot line for local residents to call about these and other sewage problems.

The district was called on the carpet again by the Bay Area Air Quality Management District Jan. 3 for alleged tardiness in pursuing its current odor control project for its Westlake treatment plant, which has been the target of repeated complaints by neighboring Westlake residents for many months for the odors and noises emanating from the facility next to Westlake Park.

District General Manager Peter Archuleta told the board Monday the BAAQMD abatement schedule and phone calls from neighbors to that agency were the topics of discussion Jan. 3.

That led Director John M. Ward to suggest the district set up a 24-hour telephone answering service, possibly a recording device, that would take the complaint calls and phone numbers of callers so the staff could call back.

Most of the odor problems seem to be on weekends, holidays and evenings, it was learned.

Mrs. Alice Walsh, a neighbor, told the board the odor from the plant was "unbelievably bad" on Christmas day. "You're supposed to be able to relax and enjoy your family in your home on this of all holidays, but we just couldn't," she said.

As a result, she went on, "I blew my cool and called the air pollution office. A man answered and took my complaint."

She went on that the smell seems most prevalent evenings and weekends.

Board Chairman Victor Kyriakis replied that this is because more people are home at those times, "using the facilities."

But those also are the hours there is no one at the sanitation district office to answer the phone, it was pointed out. San Francisco International Airport has a 24-hour number to receive complaints about jet noise. Ward reminded, adding, "It seems we have to do everything we can for people impacted by operations of this plant. Otherwise, we're just inviting them to call someone who - you know," referring to BAAQMD.

Archuleta said he would prefer complaints be directed to his office, anyway, which would provide him with data to establish a pattern, something he hasn't been able to do.

The board unanimously approved Ward's motion that Archuleta look into purchase of such a recording device and that when it becomes operational it be widely advertised through the press.

The contract approved Monday was for $466,200 for the first two stages of construction of large enclosures on the treatment plant centrifuge and "scrubbers" for the primary treatment clarifiers. Archuleta said the state also must approve the contract, since it is paying 87 1/2 percent of the cost, and he will report to the board Jan. 21 on that.

Action on Srock may be today

The long wait for Stephan Srock, the Daly City police officer suspended since last March 15 pending a decision on whether he should be fired, could be over by today.

His attorney, Charles Garry, reportedly has made public a recommendation from retired Superior Court Judge Louis B. Dematteis that Srock be suspended for a month without pay, but not dismissed, as the city had intended.

Garry, according to reports, received the recommendation from Dematteis Friday, almost 3 1/2 months after Dematteis took the case under study and after off-and-on dismissal hearings at the Civic Center that consumed most of the summer.

City Manager David R. Rowe, who will make the final decision on Srock, said Tuesday he also had received the judge's recommendations and would make his decision probably by today.

Rowe declined to reveal Dematteis' position, saying it was confidential to him until his decision was made and the involved parties notified.

Srock had been with the department for four years when he was suspended March 15, for allegedly pointing a gun at a large dog in a car during a traffic stop.

He also had been charged with other misconduct on duty, including failure to return a purse taken as evidence during a Feb. 16 court hearing, and with not handling a traffic accident investigation properly Feb. 23.

At his dismissal hearing, Srock testified that other officers had been dissuaded from testifying in his favor, particularly by Capt. Roger Austin, who admitted under questioning he had called Garry a Communist.

S.S.F. asks cutback on sewer use

The city of South San Francisco is asking that residents cut back on their use of the sewage system during the peak hours of 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

City Manager Walt Birkelo said usage should be cut back where possible, because there still is a break in the main line that carries sewage from South San Francisco and San Bruno to the treatment plant.

He suggested that residents cut down on using their dishwashers, washing machines and toilets during the high-usage mid-day hours.

"It would be helpful under these temporary circumstances," he said.

Local businesses are being notified by mail this week that everything should be done to cut sewer usage during the high-demand hours.

Because the main line to the plant broke two weeks ago, an alternate line is being used. However, Birkelo said that line is spilling over into the Colma Creek and San Francisco Bay because the volume during the peak hours is so high.

Bail-out

Daly City will receive $335,208 in additional funds from state

By HEIDI VAN ZANT

Most San Mateo County city executives will open their mail today to find that the state is awarding each city additional bailout funds ranging from a low of $914 for Brisbane to a high of $335,208 for Daly City.

The only city that will receive bad news is Hillsborough, which has been notified that it must pay back the state $78,342.

On a state-wide basis, 186 cities will be given $11.6 million in additional bailout money while another 86 cities will have to return $5.3 million to the state.

A spokesman for State Controller Ken Cory said this morning that the changes in the bailout formula were made after Proposition 13-implementation legislation was changed recently.

State Auditor Ralph Martinez also said that the bailout formula was refined after every city, county and special district budget was audited last summer by the state controller's office.

Cities already have been unofficially notified of how much they will either receive or have to pay back, he said.

"It shouldn't be coming as a complete shock," he added.

Daly City will receive one of the highest awards in the state. Other San Mateo County cities to receive a large return include San Mateo, $286,114, and South San Francisco, $220,529.

Payment to the cities reportedly will be made this week. Cities having to return money will be given to the end of this month, according to a spokesman for the controller's office.

C. Robert Green, Daly City finance director, said this morning that the City Council will meet next week to decide how the additional funds should be spent.

He anticipates the bulk of the money will be used for capital improvements.

The finance director said he was pleased to learn of the large payment that would be made to Daly City.

"We're sure glad to hear it," Green said. "It can be used."

San Mateo City Treasurer John de Russey was not quite as surprised to learn of the award.

"We've known about it since June," he said. "It's not (a bonus). It's something we anticipated getting a long time ago."

He expects that the council will want to use the $286,114 for capital improvements. He declined to say what those improvements could include.

The city of South San Francisco already has gone so far as to put the money into its current budget.

"I've been waiting for it. It's part of the budget already," said Finance Director Bill Anderson.

Someone who was shocked to learn of the revised bailout formula is Bob Davidson, Hillsborough city manager.

When told that the city has been asked to return $78,342 to the state, Davidson replied, "You've got to be kidding. I am very surprised."

He said state auditors had disallowed a large Water Department loss, but he had challenged that and assumed no pay-back would have to be made.

Following is a list of the awards that will be made to each San Mateo County city.

Atherton, $1,514; Belmont, $2,197; Brisbane, $914; Colma, no award; Burlingame, $5,272; Daly City, $335,208; Foster City, no award; Half Moon Bay, no award; Millbrae, $22,075; Pacifica, $6,540; Portola Valley, $19,538; Redwood City, $12,900; San Bruno, $52,623; San Carlos, $77,325; San Mateo, $286,114; South San Francisco, $220,529; Woodside, $1,281.

Believed to contain cocaine

Balloon surgery for D.C. man

A man believed to have been a sales clerk in Daly City last year turned himself in to a hospital in Miami, Fla. Saturday and asked physicians there to remove 88 balloons from his stomach, according to reports.

Florida officials said Herbert Meadows, 25, of Ward Court, Daly City, became frightened after news reports that a friend of his, Victor H. Benjamin, 29, of San Francisco had died after 110 cocaine-filled balloons had burst in his intestines. Benjamin had collapsed Friday after arriving from La Paz, Bolivia.

Meadows was reported in satisfactory condition today in a hospital prison ward, where he is being held on suspicion of possession and importation of a controlled substance which "can only be cocaine," Dade County Police Detective Dick Wolf said.

Laboratory test results were to be released today.

Daly City Police Capt. Roger Austin said this morning his department is investigating Meadows' background, but had found little on him so far. He is believed to have been a sales clerk at a clothing store at Seramonte Shopping Center in Daly City, Austin said, adding that his department's only contact with Meadows had been in a civil dispute in a camera store at the shopping center last June.

Benjamin, a state employee and San Francisco resident, was rushed to Hialeah Hospital Friday, where his temperature soared and his heart stopped. Physicians there said he died of an overdose from the contents of the pink, green, blue and orange balloons, which weighed about a half-pound in all.

Wolf said the balloons contained cocaine, which, depending on the purity, may have been worth about $100,000.

"We suppose they were partners," Wolf said. "We haven't determined yet who put them up to it."

When Meadows heard his friend died, he got scared because he didn't think he would be able to pass them without them bursting," Wolf said.

"It's freaky," he continued. "We get maybe two or three of these cases a year. Usually it's a kid who's put up to it. Somebody tells him, 'Hey, you want a free trip to Buenos Aires? All you have to do is make sure you bring me back a bag.'"

In a similar incident last month, 22-year-old Mark A. Watson of Melbourne, Australia, collapsed on a Miami street. His seizures and fever baffled medics for three days until a specialist found evidence that plastic bags were hidden in Watson's body.

Watson survived and was charged with possession of a controlled substance.

Sink or swim for boats, RVs at Cow Palace?

By JOHN CURRY

The public doesn't see it, but the 10 days of the annual San Francisco Sports and Boat Show represents only the tip of the iceberg that transforms the Cow Palace in Daly City into a madhouse for several weeks.

This 38th annual show, the largest of its kind on the West Coast, is the culmination of another year of work by show manager Tom Rooney and his staff.

They labor the year-round out of their cluttered offices at 615 Front St. in San Francisco to put together what Rooney sees as nothing short of The Event of the Year for the boating and sporting goods industries.

Rooney and his assistant, Jay Partington, are responsible for seeing to it that the show, running Jan. 11 to 20 this year, is organized, set up and ready to go when the doors open Friday.

What buyers and browsers will find are 600 boats displayed in every conceivable manner, from big ones on cradles to small ones on trailers, risers, tables and the floor in the main area, the North and South halls, the Marine Hall in the pavilions, and all over the indoor and outdoor passageways.

Recreational vehicles, trailers and campers will be parked cheek-by-jowl in the pavilions and outdoors, alongside prefabricated log cabins, tents and a helicopter.

A "Sporting Goods Supermarket" will fill one pavilion, with a fly-casting pond in its center, while next door the "Vacationland" pavilion booths will offer vacations and outings everywhere to almost anywhere in the world.

A Children's Fishing Hall and the Hall of Guns will be just off the pavilions.

In short, there's something for everyone, Rooney says, including a new emphasis on the "soft sports," participant games and backyard games.

But it takes a heap of planning, which consumes the first several months of the year.

But in June the real labor, which Rooney has presided over in his 32 years as show manager, really begins.

This show is dead-serious business for the big-ticket boat and RV industries, and the scramble for space was as frantic this year as it has ever been, Rooney recalled.

Twenty-eight potential exhibitors who wanted in didn't get in this year and have gone on a waiting list for next year, Rooney said. He told of one Illinois boat builder who got his application in too late. "He told us, 'But we have to get in. California is carrying us.' He didn't make it."

As sports and boat show space goes, the Cow Palace is the nation's and perhaps the world's largest showcase. It fills quickly.

Rooney said the show is different every year, evidenced by the Sportatorium Hall begun last year and the backyard sports shows and booths new this year, featuring such things as yo-yos, hula hooping, pogo-sticking and marble playing.

But there has been little turnover this year in exhibitors, Rooney said, which means that those who were here last year have clung to their space. Current exhibitors get first preference when space reservation notices go out in June, and get a 30-day grace period in July to make up their minds. After that, the show staff goes down the waiting list.

There then is the process of deciding where to put everyone and the synonymous business of allocating space.

"Some guy wanted half a wall in a pavilion to string out a few small boats," Rooney laughed. "We put an end to that."

Some others didn't get all they wanted, either. Dealers of inflatable boats handle a hot item nowadays, "but we had to draw the line on them," Rooney commented.

The exhibitors who do get into the show are well taken care of, the affable Rooney claimed. "We all but wipe their noses and tuck them in bed," he chuckled.

Years of experience and some careful missionary work have cut down the number of exhibits arriving late, for instance, although there have been some close calls.

Big yachts being trucked across country can be caught in winter storms. Because they're so big they can travel the highways only a few hours a day during non-peak traffic times and their progress can be slow.

"We've been known to give the California Highway Patrol a 'pretty please' for an escort for a Uniflite (cruiser) from Seattle to get here on time," Rooney noted, in return for a few show tickets for the officers when they arrived safely.

When the big boats, the 30- and 40-footers, get to the Cow Palace main arena, they're taken over by huge cranes which lift them onto cradles, along with the smaller sailboats which have to be raised onto the platform behind the big cruisers. The largest boat in the arena this year is a $250,000, 44-foot first-off-the-line Gulf Star cruising sloop from St. Petersburg, Fla., not quite the monster queen as some past shows have had, but big enough.

Funding wears on council

Citizens committee and staff recommendations and various ideas on how to use its sixth-year Community Development Block Grant funding of $884,000 showered on the Daly City Council Monday night until the weary councilmen called a halt to it and continued the matter to next Monday.

The council closed the public hearing after more than two hours of discussion and debate, most of it from proponents of specific projects whose requests had been cut in the report to the council.

Next Monday's meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Civic Center council chamber to give the council time to dispose of the 20-item list.

Two sets of recommendations came to the council, one each from the staff and from the new 19-member CDBG Citizens Committee, which met three times in November to decide its priorities.

Their figures differed on two items. The committee recommended $150,000 for "land banking," a plan devised by City Manager David R. Rowe to buy small parcels of land scattered around the city for future low- and moderate-income housing as an alternative to the widely opposed concept of concentrated housing projects, and nothing for job placement and development.

The staff report listed $115,000 for the land bank, with the other $35,000 going to job placement. Director of Planning and Community Development Don Fleming explained that the federal CDBG funds are dependent on the city addressing long-term employment needs and that the Daly City Community Services Center job placement records show it is performing this needed service.

The sixth-year funding is for the 1980-81 fiscal year. Most of the controversy centered around the first three recommendations on the list, $10,000 for the Anti-Crime League of Daly City, $5,000 for the Crocker Neighborhood Association's Senior Escort Program, $6,000 for the Seniors Against Crime program of CAPTURE-Citizens' Crime Prevention, Inc., and the grant to the Community Service Center, which had been turned down for federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act funds last fall by the county.

What rankled the Anti-Crime League people was the reduction to $10,000 from their $20,000 request, which would have put the league back to what it started with two years ago.

Knud Ove Knudsen, ACL treasurer-office manager, said the league has a good chance of federal funding next year if it can hold on this year and complained that the Senior Escort Service, brand-new this year, got all it asked for. Office rent and all other costs, including pay of the league's two senior citizen part-time office workers, have gone up, he said.

Ralph David of the ACL complained that lack of funds means no expansion beyond the league's present 1,300 members, most of them residents of old Daly City. He cited police statistics showing home break-ins in Daly City had declined from 1,175 in 1977 to 908 in 1978, or 23 percent. Over $250,000 in lost property costs were saved for the $9,400 the league got last year, he claimed. The $9,400 figure was the grant after administrative costs were deducted. But it isn't enough, he said, and if we don't get this $20,000, in a short time we'll have to fold."

Mrs. Susan Sweeney, a committee member and a public health nurse criticized what she called "a proliferation of anti-crime proposals."

Committee discussions of the senior escort program as a crime protection measure was getting into such things as entering homes and helping elderly citizens dress before giving them rides to where they had to go, she said, adding, "I question this aspect. This could lead to a new bureaucracy and maybe a need for bonding."

She also asked if the ACL and CAPTURE couldn't work together and perhaps avoid paying separate office rents.

But Mrs. Miriam Gholikely, a senior citizen specialist at the Community Services Center, replied that the escort service would not be home-maker-chore work and that such specialized county services "don't extend into this neighborhood. There is only one trained escort in Daly City and not enough SanTrans Redi-Wheels buses for the elderly and handicapped to service them all, she said.

Melvin D. Turner, executive director of San Mateo-based CAPTURE, was quick to defend his organization's request approval, telling the council that most of the $8,097 originally requested, and the $6,000, if granted, would be for overhead, but also would supply free locks for doors in 20 to 25 low-income senior

Set-up for the show itself begins in December when Greyhound Expo of South San Francisco, a subsidiary of Greyhound Lines, Inc., hangs the long multi-colored drapes in the main arena as a backdrop for the big boats and puts up the many signs required. Lighting for the many exhibits went in this week.

The last exhibits into the main arena, halls and pavilions will be the smaller equipment which can be wheeled or carried in by hand. These would be such items as outboard motors, marine and RV accessories and sporting goods.

The easiest people to work with, Rooney said, are the Vacationland exhibitors, who come with their tools to build their own booths and set up their displays in preparation for passing out tons of literature during the show.

"These people are from resorts and used to doing all their own work. They're so self-sufficient, they're the sweetest of them all," Rooney enthused. "And when they're through with their own booths, they'll go and give someone else a hand."

Now, the business of selling all this begins in earnest, spurred this year by the shenanigans of the Ayatollah Khomeini and 50 American hostages in Tehran. The doubling of the cost of fuel in a cruiser that burns up three gallons an hour or a 35-foot motorhome that can claim 6 or 7 miles per $1.25 a gallon gasoline could be damaging to sales, to say the least.

This show is critical to manufacturers, Rooney warned, noting that "this is an entirely different year than I've ever known."

Because manufacturers buy the show space, not dealers, the Sports and Boat Show is a trade as well as a consumer show. It's fun for mom and pop and the kids, but "if the manufacturers don't get into the show, dealers will drop the line," Rooney said.

For those manufacturers who do, the dealers provide the salespeople on the floor, and in light of the current fuel situation for powered boats and RVs, "This show is their tomorrow - or their sunset," he went on.

"The RV boys all tell us this show is critical. Every RV dealer in the West will be here, as spectators or buyers," Rooney said.

But there may be a bright side, too, the manager pointed out.

"This all happened in 1974 during the last gas crisis. It hurt attendance that year, and all the manufacturer executives were here. The salesmen were all ready to talk gas and economy, but about 15 days into the show, they found the public didn't give a damn and was buying anyway. They took off the 'Ask Me' badges and had a hell of a good show."

Sailboats will sell well, he said, noting that Don Durant of Sailboats, Inc. of Oakland had reported a 50 percent jump in business recently.

The public is changing, too, Rooney said. They used to come and look, but now they come to buy.

"Manufacturers tell us they will sell more boats here than at any other show. Glaston (a Texas runabout and cruiser manufacturer) sold 123 here two years ago, and only three at the New York show. But they have a great network of dealers, and are bound to sell more," he continued.

Just how many boats will be sold at the show is hard to tell, Rooney shrugged. "I don't know if the dealers would tell it straight if they did tell us, but one claimed he did 25 percent of his year's volume here."

Keeping the show "dignified" under these hard-sell circumstances isn't always easy, but Rooney said it is done. That's why the customers won't see used-car-style price signs on boats or RVs at this show, one of the few in the country which doesn't allow it.

"If we let them do it, they're changing prices every hour and we practically have blood running in the aisles," Rooney said. "Show specials," offered by virtually all the manufacturers, can be offered face-to-face by salesmen, but that's it. Exhibits have been known to be closed, covered with a tarpaulin, chained and posted with a guard for violation of this rule, he noted, "but it only has to happen once."

Potential buyers will notice some changes in RVs and boats this year. Besides becoming fancier by the year, the RVs are "being lightened up drastically" for better fuel mileage, and many boat builders who dropped their outboard motor lines years ago are bringing them back because they weigh less and in some cases use less fuel, Rooney said.

Some other highlights of the show will be introduction of a new Mercury outboard goliath of 300 horsepower, a $15,000 computerized fishing reel from Japan for the serious angler, and the famed Harold's Club gun collection and antiques from the Reno casino's Roaring Camp Saloon, in their first exhibition outside of Reno.

Attendance is expected to hit its usual 375,000, which Rooney said has been consistent. "We used to have to tell people how to get to the Cow Palace," he mused. Two years ago the crowd overflowed the Cow Palace's allowed capacity and the gates had to be closed during one weekend afternoon.

Weekends still draw best and weekdays are the only chance for expansion of attendance, the manager said.

"When we started (in 1948), it was all cartop boats and little stuff," Rooney recalled. Now, the motto is "So Big. Come Twice." Many, many people do.

The Sports and Boat Show is the largest attraction of the year for the Cow Palace, far outdistancing its only rivals for area-wide attention, the Grand National Livestock Exposition, Horse Show and Rodeo in October and the annual visit of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus in late summer.

King program slated in D.C.

A special program has been scheduled at Calvary Hill Missionary Baptist Church in Daly City Saturday, on what would have been the 51st birthday of the late Dr. Martin Luther King.

"Creating the Beloved Community: Non-Violent Social Change in the Eighties" will be the theme of the program, from noon to 3 p.m. at the church, 101 Vista Grande Ave., and open to the public.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. Amos Brown, pastor of the Third Baptist Church in San Francisco.

ARRIVES FOR DUTY

Airman First Class Eduardo B. Pades, son of Lolda B. Pades of 197 Palisades Drive, Daly City, has arrived for duty at Torrelon Air Base, Hampton, Va.

Airman Pades, a graphics specialist, was previously assigned at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas, and is now serving with a unit of the United States Air Forces in Europe.

citizen homes in Daly City.

Mrs. Alice Gonzales, director of the Community Services Center, took considerable prodding from the council, particularly Councilman William Schumacher, who asked, "What are they (two employees hired with the $35,000) going to do?"

They would "service Daly City residents not eligible for CETA," Mrs. Gonzales said, but the council clearly was not convinced that the expenditure would be worthwhile.

The Crocker Neighborhood Association also asked for $100,000 to help buy the old Crocker School site from Michael Callan, a developer who recently purchased the land and buildings from the Jefferson Elementary School District. The committee recommended $50,000.

The Rev. Rafael Fortier explained that the crowded Crocker neighborhood needs the open space and that the usable buildings could be renovated into community facilities. He said there were "other funding agencies" that could be tapped for the rest of the money, but at Councilman Albert Teglia's request to "get a sounding in the next several months to see if it's practical," Fortier said he would.

The other funding recommendations:

$8,300 to the Guadalupe Health Center to re-locate its optometric examination room; $25,000 for a North Peninsula Neighborhood Services Center, Inc. house painting project; $35,000 for the same organization's housing minor repair project; $40,000 for Lincoln Park development; $10,000 for the Lincoln Park Clubhouse; $18,000 for War Memorial Building improvements; $31,700 for new War Memorial Building restrooms; $68,000 for administration of several of the projects, which were charged to the projects before; $12,000 for citizen participation costs in CDBG project planning, monitoring and applications; $75,000 for the proposed new Doelger Community Center senior citizen facilities at Westlake School, for which the city now is negotiating purchase; and $340,000 for the city's housing conservation and rehabilitation program of low-cost home repair loans in old Daly City.

ON THE CUSHING

Navy Mess Management Specialist 2nd Class Renato D. Escudero, whose wife, Sally, is the daughter of Santiago and Fermina Bayaua of 92 Cerro Drive, Daly City, is serving as a crewmember aboard the Navy's newest destroyer, the USS Cushing.

Vice Admiral Lee Baggett Jr., USN, commander of the Naval Surface Forces, U.S. Pacific Fleet, was the principal speaker for the ceremony.

More than 260 officers and enlisted men are assigned to the Cushing. Primarily designed for anti-submarine warfare (ASW), the ship is armed with two lightweight five-inch guns, ASW torpedoes and ASW rockets. The Cushing is also capable of carrying a light helicopter for long range detection and attack of submarines.

The Stein is a 438-foot long "Knox" class frigate with a crew of 283. Equipped with guns, missiles and rockets, she can operate independently or as part of a naval task force. She is also outfitted with a landing platform and normally carries a light helicopter for long range detection and attack of submarines.

Escudero joined the Navy in October 1968.

Board called vindictive

Pastor Donald Sheley of the Church of the Highlands in San Bruno is inviting parents and community members to the next Board of Trustees meeting of the San Bruno Park School District to discuss the board's decision not to extend its superintendent's contract.

After the board voted 4-1, over Trustee Chris Pallas' objections, not to extend Dr. Robert Rottman's contract Dec. 19, Sheley vowed to make his own assessment of the reasons the board gave and to report his findings back to the board.

Sheley said Monday, "I have talked with a number of folks and I can only come to one conclusion: that their action was vindictive and they want somebody to pay for having to close Sandburg School. They want Dr. Rottman to pay."

Sheley noted, "The reasons they give are not adequate reasons to fire anyone. They are taking the position, 'We haven't fired Dr. Rottman; we just haven't decided to renew his contract.'"

The pastor said he intends to report his findings to the board Jan. 16. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at either the district office at 500 Acacia Ave. or at the adjacent senior center if it is completed by then.

"I want a mass reaction at that board meeting on the 16th, then if there is not a change of opinion by the board, I think there should be some sort of action," Sheley said.

Asked what sort of action he is contemplating, Sheley said he and other citizens will talk about that at a later date.

In another reaction to the Dec. 19 meeting, about 25 parents of children attending John Muir School met with Trustee Tony Alioto last Thursday and questioned him about his intentions as a new board member.

Association will get underway Thursday, with a committee of interested persons to gather at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Tierney to put the finishing touches on recommendations for by-laws.

The first general membership meeting is slated for 7:30 p.m. next Thursday, Jan. 17, in the Fernando Rivera School multipurpose room on Southgate Avenue.

Serving on the committees are:

Mrs. Virginia Tierney, by-laws committee chairwoman, with Mr. and Mrs. Eldon MacRunnells, Ernie Bloom, John Lauderdale, Dick Behnke, Fred Curtiss, Rudie Antheimer, Terry De Martini and ex-officio member Mrs. Virginia Duggan.

On the membership committee are Rudy Maranan, Al Corvi and Richard Barrios. The communications committee includes Mrs. Marie Guerrero, Mrs. Tierney, Mrs. Jessie Gon, Mrs. Lucy Malindag, Mrs. Carrie Corvi, Mrs. Sally Snyder, Mrs. Nina Romo, William Hawkins, Eddy Nu, Anthony Giammona, Mary Johnson, Eldon MacRunnells, Mrs. Judy Buchiasso and Mrs. Anne Parker.

Publicity is being handled by Mrs. Tierney and petition correlation by Mrs. Guerrero, with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vierra and Fidel Remo preparing the petition presentation.

Alvin Schwarzbach, Raul Cornejo, Mrs. Connie Less, Mrs. Donna Virgilio, Mrs. Joan Daly, Emmett Tierney and Ed Martini are involved in park and Lions Club liaison and Mrs. Marlene Dickerman is taking reservations for meetings.

Any residents of the St. Francis Heights area wishing more information about the association may call Mr. and Mrs. Tierney.

Alpha Iota sorority will meet at 7:30 tonight at the home of Mrs. Hildegard Hansen.

'U.S. technology falling behind'

By JANET PARKER

Science and technology is falling dangerously behind in the United States as the 1980s begin, threatening to slash the living standards of Americans and damage world economic stability, the American Association for the Advancement of Sciences was warned Thursday.

"A severe technology slip by the United States... carries with it unacceptable economic, social and political consequences, not only for the U.S. but the world," Dr. Simon Ramo said at the opening meeting of the 130,000-member association's 146th annual conference in San Francisco.

"We do not have to be first in everything," Ramo said. "But we need superiority in enough areas so we can trade, prosper, cooperate and stimulate, thus adding to world economic and social progress."

Ramo, recent National Medal of Science winner, is one of the nation's leading scientists and a co-founder of TRW Inc., one of the world's largest technological corporations.

He has been chief scientist of the nation's Intercontinental Ballistic Missile Program as well as chairman of the President's Committee on Science and Technology.

Ramo pioneered in several areas of scientific research, including microwaves and guided missiles.

His somber message to the influential AAAS at the first meeting of its five-day conference was clear: An improved position in science and technology is mandatory if the nation is to maintain a competitive international position.

America, he said, has lost its technological leadership in a number of areas and is in the process of losing it in still others, he related.

The critical effects of the slow-down in science and technology are so apparent that presidential candidates, including Sen. Edward Kennedy, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and John Connally, have identified it as a cause of inflation, unemployment, declining productivity, trade deficits and a weakened security posture, he said.

For more than a century, until the last 10 to 20 years, the U.S. steadily increased its productivity, Ramo said. Now it is last in the list of the world's industrialized nations in its annual rate of productivity growth.

From 1950 to the present, he pointed out, productivity in Japan rose at four times the rate growth in U.S. During the first half of the 1970s, wage compensation per hour in the U.S. went up about 8 percent per year while productivity increased only about 1.5 percent annually.

Just as alarming, he said, is a deteriorating trade balance. In 1978, Ramo said, the U.S. trade deficit reached a record $30 billion.

JOB WELL DONE

Supervisor James Fitzgerald, at left, reads a commendation to Fred Lyon who is leaving the board after many years of service. Fitzgerald will head the Board of Supervisors this year.

Fitzgerald lists program for '80s

A seven-step program for the '80s for San Mateo County was outlined today by James V. Fitzgerald as he assumed chairmanship of the County Board of Supervisors.

- Fitzgerald listed the challenges as:
- Providing more housing.
 - Reforming the health care system to insure quality care at a reasonable cost.
 - Raising the quality of living for handicapped by helping them help themselves.
 - Facing up "to the real problems" of senior citizens.
 - Making government more responsive.
 - Finding ways to help those dependent on welfare to "live as independent citizens."
 - Promoting environmentally-sound development.

Fitzgerald, who has been on the board since 1961, succeeds outgoing chairman Fred Lyon.

John Ward was elected vice chairman.

The annual gavel-passing is a tradition in San Mateo County in which the supervisors select among their peers one to chair the year's meetings.

"As a board of supervisors, we must pledge... that we will renew our efforts and sensitivities to be more responsive in the 1980s, both to individual needs and issues and that we will continue to work for open communications with all citizens.

"If we do that, I believe San Mateo County can serve as a model to our fellow Americans on how to deal with difficult decade of the '80s."

The trend can only be reversed, Lyon warned. If the public begins "to show respect to public officials and become sufficiently involved so that they can tell which elected officials deserve respect."

REENLISTMENT

Daly City man up for 15 more

Radioman First Class Michael Stanley recently extended his 15-year Navy career another four years in reenlistment ceremonies held at the communications division headquarters building of the Commander-in-Chief U.S. Pacific Fleet headquarters in Makalapa, Hawaii.

A graduate of Serra High School in San Mateo, Stanley is the son of Milan J. and Virginia A. Stanley of 343 Citrus Ave., Daly City.

Reenlistments are something special to those who do the enlisting, but Stanley's was made even more interesting by the involvement of some special people.

The oath of enlistment was given to Stanley by his former communications officer aboard the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier USS Enterprise, Cdr. Malcolm P. Nash III, now head of the communications-electronic plans and programs section at CincPacFlt.

Witnessing the reenlistment ceremony were several of Stanley's former shipmates who served with him during his second tour of duty aboard the Enterprise from 1974-1976.

"We were a close knit group in the communications division aboard the Enterprise, and Stanley was the hub of the group," Nash says. "We wanted to do something special for his last reenlistment."

"The members of the communication division here in Hawaii got together and we rented a Rolls Royce which formerly belonged to Queen Elizabeth. We thought he deserved a 'first class' touch for his final reenlistment."

The former assistant communications officer aboard the Enterprise, Lt. Kenneth Holcom — now stationed at Commander-in-Chief, Pacific headquarters in the communications-data processing section — explains more of the special arrangements.

"We brought Stanley from his present duty station on Midway Island so his old boss could do the honors of reenlisting him," he says.

"Stanley was a good asset to our division. He is good for morale. He was always coming up with something new to keep us going."

Presently stationed at the U.S. Naval Air Facility Midway Island in the security division, Stanley is a part-time radio personality known at Midway's Navy radio station KMTH as "Uncle Steamer." His radio show is called "Uncle Steamer's good old Rock & Roll Show," and he also provides a disco show at the enlisted club on Midway on weekends.

Stanley also is a numismatic, having an extensive coin collection. He says he has won several national and international awards for his coin collecting. He belongs to the Hawaii State Numismatic Association (HSNA) and at one time was president of the HSNA.

Penny Caldwell Took Our Challenge To Compare Prices...

November 18, 1979

Public Relations
Lucky Stores Inc.
1701 Marina Blvd.
San Leandro, CA

Dear Sirs:

I am convinced that Lucky's has overall low prices. Not until I took your challenge to compare prices with other markets did I become a full time shopper at Luckys.

On two occasions, separated by almost a year, I compared over twenty items at Luckys prices and the same items from, not one but, two other popular chain markets. I was surprised. Overall, and in most instances item for item, Luckys prices were lower. Thank you for the lower totals.

Sincerely,
Penny Caldwell
Hayward, California

"I am convinced that Lucky has overall low prices"

"The proof is in the pudding," as the saying goes. That's why we at Lucky want to share this unsolicited letter we received from one of our customers. To put our claims to the test, Penny Caldwell of Hayward, California decided to take us up on our "Double the Difference Refund Guarantee" using her own shopping list. On two separate occasions she compared Lucky with two different competing supermarkets. In both instances, Lucky had the lowest checkstand total. Why not find out for yourself? Shop and compare, using your own shopping list. When it comes to guaranteed savings—Lucky Has It!

Compare For Yourself! Lucky's "Double-The-Difference" Guarantee Insures Savings!

January is 'Football Mania Month'

Question of Football Mania Month: Give me a good reason why San Diego, Philadelphia and Dallas shouldn't be VERY embarrassed.

Runner-Up Question of Football Mania Month: Why did John Robinson wait so long to turn the Rose Bowl over to Charles White?

Does Robinson realize how close he came to being Goat of Football Mania Month? He strolled the sidelines while the greatest collegiate offensive weapon since O. J. Simpson touched the ball only often enough to balance a balanced attack that wasn't working. On USC's next to last drive, which ended with a missed field goal, White, finally getting his hands on the ball consistently, had sparked a running attack that had taken the Trojans to the Ohio State 20. It was second and five and White had been picking up 5-8 all the way down-field. So Robinson tolerates passes (incomplete) on the next two tries, and there went the rally. When a running game is working, why would a coach suddenly take to the air? Shouldn't he wait until the running game is stopped?

And speaking of White, can there be any doubt after his Rose Bowl performance as to his acceptability as a No. 1 draft pick? They say he's too small, but to the best of my recollection he missed only one full game due to injury during his entire USC career, which is a whole lot more than can be said of big backs Curtis Dickey and Billy Sims.

And speaking of Simpson, an embarrassing moment was averted by Robinson after the game when O.J. was interviewing him for the network. "White," said Robinson, "is the greatest college running back I've ever seen," and then, realizing who was standing next to him, Robinson caught his tongue and made "seen" come out "coached."

He did show more class than Bear Bryant. Bryant, up 24-9 against Arkansas with possession of the ball and less than four minutes to play, ordered quarterback Steadman Shealy to throw up a bomb. Bear evidently had the national title in mind, going for as big a point margin as possible. With USC on the Ohio State four yard line, time enough for one or two quick plays and with White still running through the Buckeyes like water, Robinson ordered the clock to be run out, even though an eight-point margin over unbeaten Ohio State would have looked better to the pollsters than a one-point win.

And by the way, if you were surprised over Ohio State's showing, you shouldn't have been. As USC proved against Stanford and Cal, their one vulnerability was the pass, and Ohio State went into the Rose Bowl with a potent passing attack for the first time in history.

After the first few 49er games, which were tough losses against top teams, I wrote that while it was fine to be patient with the 49ers; for those figuring that if they were playing such tight games that "the wins will come soon enough," that "you should win the ones you COULD have won, because if you don't, if you get that losing habit, then you start losing the games you SHOULD have won." Which, of course, is exactly what happened.

On the other hand, the 49ers showed improvement (except at winning) in many ways in the second half, and left some hope. Compare them statistically with the Raiders, for example, who, after all, almost did make the playoffs, and they compare favorably virtually everywhere except in the "W" column:

The 49ers had more first downs than opponents, the Raiders didn't; the 49ers had more total offense per game (348.3-323.4) and gave up fewer yards to opponents (337.1-342.9); the 49ers gained more per play (5.1-5.0) and gave up exactly as much per play to opponents — 5.2. The 49ers gained more yards rushing per play (4.0-3.6) and had more yards rushing per play (4.1-4.4) and fewer yards per game (138.3-148.4).

The 49ers, who led the NFC in passing (third overall), gained 227.6 yards per game, Oakland 213.2. There was hardly any difference in yards allowed opponents per game, the 49ers giving up 198.8, the Raiders 194.5. The 49ers allowed opponents 13.0 yards per completion, the Raiders 13.6.

The 49ers passed for 60.0 percent, the Raiders 60.6. One big difference was that the Raiders "held" opponents to a percentage of 52.4, while the 49ers gave up a 59.4.

Steve DeBerg was sacked only 17 times, Kenny Stabler 36, and that's especially impressive on the 49ers' side because DeBerg is just as immobile (or more so) as Stabler.

The 49ers were intercepted more than Oakland (21-23) but had a lower percentage of interceptions per attempt.

Oakland, with Ray Guy, of course, had a clear edge in punting, but the 49ers were better on punt returns (7.1 average to 5.1) and on yards allowed opponents on punt returns (7.1-10.4). The Raiders, with Larry Brunson and Ira Matthews one-three in the NFL in kick returns, beat the 49ers there, 22.7-20.5, and also gave up less than the 49ers on KO returns, 20.1-20.5.

The 49ers, "known" for their turnovers, lost 18 fumbles, the Raiders 19. However, the Raiders causes their opponents to lose 22 fumbles, the 49ers only 14.

The Raiders, in fact, were seventh in the NFL in turnover ratio. There is even hope here, though, because of obvious 49er improvement in this department later in the season. For about half the season they were tied with Detroit as the worst in the NFL. At season's end, Detroit was still last, while the 49ers were in the middle of the pack.

They improved in much the same way on pass defense, standing at the bottom for much of the season, and finishing with Atlanta, New York, Cincinnati and Seattle having yielded more passing yardage than them.

And finally, the 49ers, who were thought of as Mr. Bumbles, had 95 penalties for 853 yards, while the Raiders had 119 for 1,029.

Unfortunately, the 49ers scored 308 points, the Raiders 365, while the 49ers gave up 416, the Raiders 337.

It apparently all amounted to the Raiders being more able to do the good things at the best times, and the 49ers doing their bad things at the worst times.

The name for that is experience.

RANDOM NOTES:

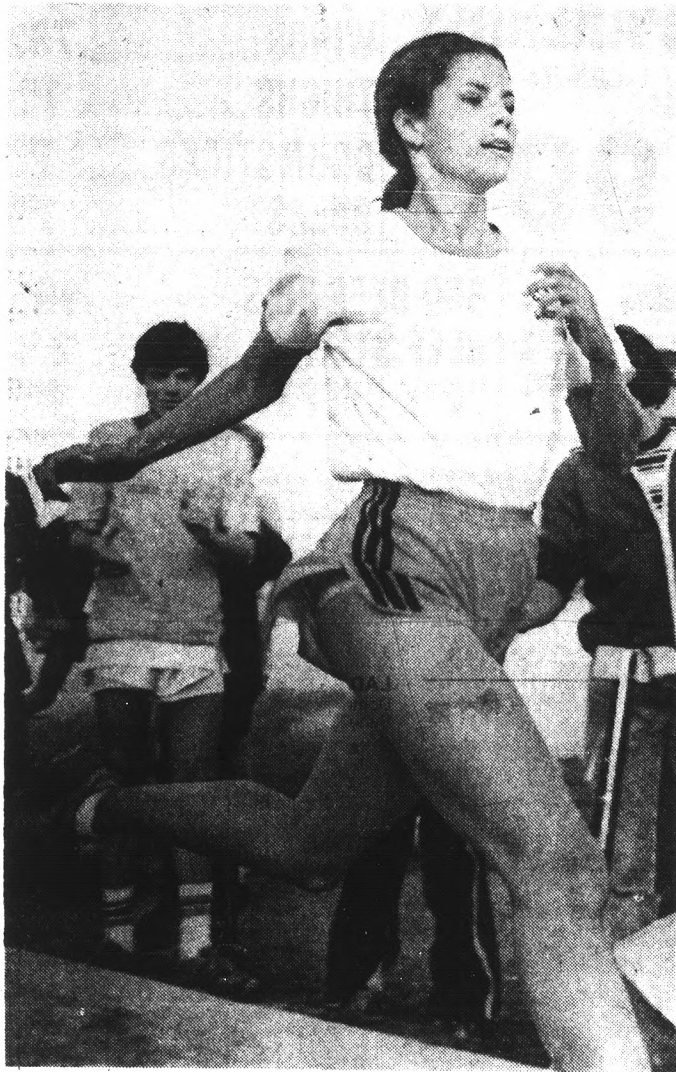

Writing, as we were above, of Oakland's outstanding kick returners, Brunson and Matthews, remember that San Francisco's rookie, James Owens finished fifth in the NFL in KO returns, which means that the Bay Area had three of the top five in that department.

John Madden was right when he said that the only defensive statistic that means anything is "points allowed."

I don't care what you NBA red-hot say, the league continues to show no class — or respect — in scheduling games on Christmas.

Have you ever noticed that hockey players, unless they use a stick, never hurt each other in those legendary brawls? With all of that padding and not being able to get good traction on the ice, how could they land a damaging punch?

At last report, Bob Abplanalp was the leading contender to be the next owner of the Mets. Now, keeping in mind that Richard Nixon is moving to New York (which should be a load off Gene Autry's shoulders), could there be any connection? After all, Nixon was once being considered for the commissioner's job. Maybe he wants to coach first base. "All right now, son. I want you to shorten your lead 18 inches."

Finished

Women's junior mile

Schnurpfeil 'too relaxed'

Most runners map their strategy carefully prior to the starter's gunshot, sizing up the field, setting a pace in their mind, psyching themselves up for their race.

Precise, detailed planning — emotionally and physically.

San Mateo's Kim Schnurpfeil, however, entered the women's junior mile at the Runner's World Indoor Classic at the Cow Palace Friday night with quite a different scheme.

None at all.

And it didn't work.

"I didn't know what to expect," said the 18-year-old Stanford freshman, one of the vanguard of young women helping to boost women's track on The Farm and already the school's all-time cross-country record holder.

"I hadn't raced indoors before and I didn't think about the race. I just was going to see what happened. That was a bad attitude."

Kimberly was boxed in early, drove for the lead and got it, but faded at the end, finishing third behind Linda Goen of UCLA (4:54.8) and Roxanne Bier of the San Jose Cindergals (4:58.7).

Schnurpfeil, timed in 4:59.9, was critical of her performance.

"I was too relaxed, wasn't aggressive enough," she said. "I should have gone out from the beginning, and I probably wasted some energy catching up. I just don't think I fought."

But Kim can expect such disappointing races. Although a fast-rising runner in the collegiate world, she's still a relative neophyte to competition — and competitiveness.

"That's something new to me," said the San Mateo High grad and last season's Northern California prep runner of the year who has run competitively for only three years.

She had always loved jogging. For fun. For relaxation. But when that physical education teacher noticed her during her sophomore year, her life changed drastically.

"Sometimes I think about it (her quick success), and I just don't believe it," said Kim. "I'm not a real coordinated person, and though I always played sports I never was great at anything."

"But running sort of came naturally. I'm a hard worker and very determined that that's some of the qualities you need to be a great distance runner."

For Schnurpfeil, running has expanded her horizons and allowed the day-to-day stress of life to ease.

"I have a talent for it and I get a lot out of it," said Kim. "I'm kind of a tense person, and running gets all my anxieties out, helps me relax. It gives me something to direct my energy on."

Yet Schnurpfeil is no running fool, no fanatic. Races may dominate her life, her thinking, but they don't dominate her.

"It has given me a lot of opportunities," she said. "It has built my confidence. But at the same time I don't want to make it my life. It's not the only thing. But right now running is inspiring me, and I'm putting a lot of my emotions into it."

In other results at the Runner's World meet, Belmont's Harry Koppel was second in the Master's 60 in 7.1, half a second behind winner Payton Jordan; former Millbrae Lions Track Club runners Kella Bolton and Marian Franklin — now of California — finished third and fifth respectively in the women's 400, and ex-MLTC member Elaine Farker was fourth in the women's 50 meter in 6.61.

Dons rally, top Notre Dame

Aragon High's girls' basketball team always seems to do better in the second half; the Dons had to overcome a 19-16 halftime deficit to defeat visiting Notre Dame of Belmont, 52-42, in a non-league contest Friday.

Notre Dame (1-4) took its lead behind 12 points from Ann Bartrom, and 10 from Andrea Jardine. Aragon (6-8) came out with a man-to-man press and, with Mai Shinn and Beverlee Tkachenko racking up the steals, the Dons disrupted NDB's game.

Aragon also went to work on the boards and took control, with Dean

Manu scoring 10 of her game-high 23 points in the third quarter. Cynthia Moore added 16.

St. Francis High of Mt. View (10-1), rated the No. 1 team in the Central Coast Section, beat Carlmont 52-30 in a non-league clash in Belmont Friday night.

The Scots didn't help matters by playing poorly against the discipline, pattern offense and full-court press of the Lancers.

Forward Michelle Sanchez was the game's leading scorer with 21 points for the Scots, now 8-2 in the pre-season.

Listless Serramonte (2-3) dropped a 37-23 decision to Lincoln of San Francisco Friday at Daly City.

SSF girls triumph

Tiger skein broken

By SIMI LEE

After shooting two free throws to tie the score, South San Francisco High's freshman Scheron Douglas stole the ball, raced the length of the court and sank the winning bucket with about 20 seconds left to upset visiting Terra Nova 42-40 in a North Peninsula League girls' basketball opener Friday.

The South SF win, in a game between the league's two favorites, ended Terra Nova's two-year win streak of 29 consecutive victories in league and post-season play against NPL teams. TN's last loss was a 55-54 Westmoor victory in January, 1978.

The win was sweet for the Warriors, who have been knocked out of the NPL championships for two straight years by the Tigers.

TN had a 39-36 lead with 2:30 left, had momentum, having just taken the lead, and was on the line for a one-and-one free throw that could have nailed the lid on the coffin.

But instead, that's when the game turned completely around.

TN missed the free throw. Then Douglas, SSF's outstanding 5-10 rookie center, went to work and tossed in a basket from inside.

Terra Nova's Lorrie Diaz sank a free throw for a 40-38 Tiger advantage, but Douglas answered with two free throws of her own with a minute left to tie it 40-40 and set the stage for her game-winning basket.

It took a lot of yelling from SSF Coach Ed Bohnert to prevent SSF from disintegrating after Terra Nova rallied to take its first lead early in the fourth quarter on Danette Tronski's field goal.

"We were getting excited towards the end and started bunching up in the key, which didn't leave room for anyone to do anything," explained Bohnert. "After we moved apart, Scheron got inside and started scoring. When you have a player like Scheron, you can penetrate against anybody."

Douglas finished the night with 19 points and scored 12 of those points after being assessed with her fourth foul in the middle of the third quarter.

Bohnert's gamble, his refusal to take her out of the game, paid off. "Douglas is really coming around, isn't she?" said Bohnert. "She showed a lot of poise playing like that with four fouls."

Shelly Blackmon and Patty Wintroath also played well defensively for SSF, forcing Terra Nova outside for most of its shots.

"A tip of my hat has to go to Sheri Huddleston (10 points)," noted Bohnert. "Sheri ran the team well tonight, despite playing with sore knees that forced her to come out for frequent rests."

Terra Nova did hurt the Warriors from outside. Karen Blanchard, a 5-8 senior, scored consistently with outside set shots for 13 points. Diaz, who spent most of the game pilfering passes in the Warrior backcourt, poured in 12 points.

But the Terra Nova last break, a Tiger trademark in previous years, just wasn't there.

Because of problems due to the rescheduled holiday vacation period, all of the other NPL openers were postponed Monday at 3:15 p.m. Westmoor will meet El Camino and Oceana goes to Serramonte while on Monday, Jan. 14 at 3:15, Jefferson will travel to Half Moon Bay.

With inside muscle

Indians foil Cougars

By GREG QUIGLEY

Jefferson High's basketball team opened defense of its North Peninsula League title by overcoming host Half Moon Bay's defensive tactics and posting a 54-44 win Friday night.

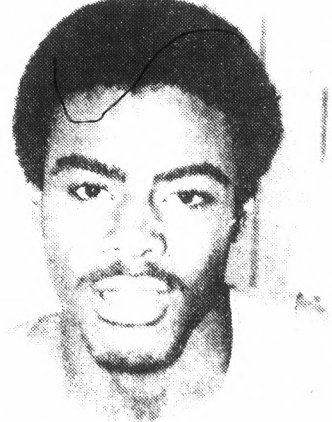

Half Moon Bay took Jeff out of its continuous-motion offense, but the Indians' strong rebounding and inside play were too much for the Cougars.

"I don't know what it is, but we seem to play at the tempo of our opponents," said Jeff Coach Bud Bresnahan. "I knew it would be around a five- or six-point game. When you play at a slow tempo, the defense tends to relax, thus giving the offense an easy shot."

The Cougars took Jefferson out of its running offense and usually worked for an inside shot at the other end. However, HMB forward and leading scorer Doug Warner had his difficulties inside, having trouble getting up shots from the key area.

The biggest lead for either team until the final buzzer was a 26-17 Indian bulge late in the second period. Jeff was sparked by substitute Thaddeus Gill and forward Ernie Dupree.

Warner's third-period performance helped close the Jeff lead to 34-31 with 2:00 remaining in the quarter. The Cougars came even closer in the fourth on an Eric Branstrom free throw, making the score 38-36.

That was about it for the HMB offense. For Jefferson, Ken Mackey, who had been held scoreless in the first half, came alive and hit nine points in the final period, putting the game out of reach at 50-42 with 1:03 to go.

"I'm just so pleased with the way everyone played," said Cougars Coach Chuck Smith. "We got them playing one-on-one. We had a chance to win the game with a successful free throw."

"We went into this game with no scouting reports. All I knew is that they played man-to-man. Since our offense is geared to short shots, the man-to-man helped us."

Jefferson now will play in NPL play-offs to South San Francisco High Wednesday afternoon at 3:15. Half Moon Bay will host Westmoor Wednesday at 3:15.

Rams tip scrappy EC

By TIM MENICUTCH

El Camino High's basketball team came away from its North Peninsula League opener Friday night with a moral victory.

But heavily favored Westmoor emerged with the real victory, 58-48. The scrappy Colts battled back from a 15-point deficit to pull within six points of the visiting Rams before falling to their physically superior foes.

Westmoor did few things right in the opening quarter but took a 13-8 lead.

Westmoor, possibly feeling a little embarrassed about its first quarter performance, put some quality into its second-period work.

Flashy guard Derrick Johnson earned a couple of jumpers and the Rams rattled off the first six points of the quarter to go ahead 19-8.

El Camino forward John Cowen found the range for a while, and the But Westmoor big men Troy Williams and Ed Conlan got aggressive in the middle, and the smaller Colts were no match.

Westmoor accelerated to a 26-12 lead and led 32-17 at halftime.

Overmatched, El Camino refused to quit. At 5:36 of the third quarter, the Colts surged to within seven points, 34-27. El Camino center Mike Bigham was most responsible for the comeback, with seven points in the first 2:50 of the period.

Just as El Camino could finally smell the lead, Westmoor pulled away again. Williams scored on a pair of inside efforts and Westmoor led by 14.

El Camino got within striking distance twice more. Late in the third quarter, Bigham drove the length of the court for two points to cut the lead to six.

Good morning, good cooks. While checking through my recipes for a new idea for a dessert, I ran across a prize winner from the 1962 Bake-Off. It looked and sounded so delicious that I decided to give it a try.

I'm glad I did, for it was as delicious as it looked, and here it is for you good cooks.

FROSTY CHOCOLATE SQUARES

- 1 cup (6-oz. pkg.) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/3 cup butter
- 1/3 cup (9-oz. pkg.) cream cheese
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 unheated eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 teaspoons shortening

Melt the six ounces chocolate morsels over hot water. Sift the two cups flour with the two and one-half teaspoons baking powder and one teaspoon salt.

Cream the third cup each butter and cream cheese. Gradually add the one cup sugar, creaming well. Blend in the two eggs, beating well after.

Stir in melted chocolate, reserving 2 tablespoons.

Combine one cup milk and fourth teaspoon vanilla. Add alternately with dry ingredients to creamed mixture, beginning and ending with dry ingredients; blend well after each addition. (With mixer use a low speed.) Turn into 13x9 or 12x8-inch pan, well greased and lightly floured on bottom.

Bake in 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes. Cool; cut in 2-inch squares. Frost top and sides with whipped cream and drizzle with reserved chocolate, heated with 2 teaspoons shortening. Or frost with Chocolate Frosting. Makes 24.

SWEETENED WHIPPED CREAM

Beat one cup whipping cream until thick. Stir in 2 tablespoons sugar and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Frosts 12.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

- 1 cup (6 oz. pkg.) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
- 1/3 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar

Melt the one cup chocolate morsels over hot, not boiling, water. Add third cup evaporated milk, one teaspoon vanilla and one cup confectioners' sugar; stir until smooth and satiny. Keep over hot water while spreading. Frosts 12.

Most of us rush through life. One thing not to rush through is a diet. The minute an ad or a person tells you that you can rush 15 pounds away in a week's time . . . BEWARE! Something's wrong.

Dieting is a slow, sure race — just like the one the tortoise won. Come to think of it, that little fable applies to the situation as no other story does.

The diet hare goes off on a tear of pills, miracle aids to loss, or monotone diets. The first week, there's a noticeable loss. Wow! The race is won before it's over. By the time the second week rolls around, the hare is tiring of the whole thing. From then on, it's one excuse after another to lie down on the job and go to sleep.

The tortoise starts off with the goal in mind but not in view and plods steadily along with time to enjoy the surrounding countryside. Plucky little tortoise isn't distracted by the hare's initial success — it's that distant goal that counts, and that comes closer daily.

Tortoise food is very good. In fact it's human fodder, like this:

BEAN SPROUT SALAD

- 1 lb. bean sprouts
- 2 green onions, sliced
- 1 tsp. onion juice
- 1 tbsp. soy sauce
- 1/3 cup sliced celery
- 1 tomato, sliced
- 1 tbsp. vinegar
- 1 pkg. artificial sweetener

Have all vegetables cleaned and chilled. Combine in salad bowl. Mix remaining ingredients; pour over vegetables. Toss carefully so that sprouts do not break. Serve on lettuce.

I've raced both ways — as hare and as tortoise — so I speak with experience when I say that the rush approach doesn't make it. Whatever I rushed off rushed back, and then some, once the fast diet was finished. When I settled into the right track and moved slowly along it, my fat went away. I left it far behind, so far behind it's still trying to find me.

Slow and steady wins the day. Set your goal weight. Keep it in mind. It may not roll up on the scale tomorrow, next week, or next month, but I promise that it will come nearer and nearer and nearer until suddenly one day it's there. Congratulations, winner!

Students of Westmoor High School have had many of their extra-curricular activities stifled as a result of the last strike by the teachers of the Jefferson Union High School District, but they are determined to make up for lost time, and activities now are in full swing.

Student body officers for the fall semester are Sue Starin (president), Dave Escalante (vice president), Cathy Holmes (secretary), and Sandra Jones (parliamentarian). Commissioners are Rachele Fernandez as Commissioner of Clubs, Leti Turnbull as Commissioner of Entertainment, Teresa Cinti as Commissioner of Publicity and Mike Montes as Rally Commissioner.

"Go Jump in the Lake" by Elaine Berman is a children's fantasy and the latest production by Westmoor's drama department. It's directed by Kenneth Brown and performances will be given in early February.

In an effort to help bring much-needed aid to the starving people of Cambodia, students of Westmoor organized a "Don't Let Them Die" committee. The committee, comprised of several student body officers, teachers and other concerned students, wished to bring to the attention of Westmoor's student body the world problem of the Cambodian holocaust and to present them with a way to help.

On Nov. 5, a school-wide letter day was organized. More than 160 letters written by students were sent to such groups as the media, representatives of the United Nations and non-aligned nations, as well as the majority and minority leaders of both houses.

The object was to put pressure on the government of Phenom Phen so aid could reach Cambodia.

The letter day was a success because most of the students became aware of the tragedy in Cambodia, and to the fact that a holocaust can happen again in our time.

For almost the past two decades, Westmoor has sponsored an annual canned food and clothes drive. In cooperation with Goodwill in San Francisco and the Daly City Recreation Department, Westmoor insured that this year the needy people of its community and those nearby will have a merry Christmas.

Congratulations are in order for Westmoor's junior varsity girls' volleyball team for becoming league champions, and to Westmoor's football team for reaching the title of co-champions of the NPL league.

Westmoor's basketball games for January include one at Half Moon Bay at 3 and 4:30 Jan. 9, and Serramonte and Westmoor will play Jan. 11 at Serramonte at 3 and 4:30.

Steve's Coffee Shop menu pleases

Patrons of Crystal Springs Shopping Center in San Mateo and residents of the fashionable neighborhoods in the nearby area are welcoming the new menu, high quality home cooking, and customer service attention at STEVE'S COFFEE SHOP, which is the new name of the coffee shop located in the shopping center now under new ownership and management of STEVE EVANS. Assisted by his father and mother, who are widely experienced in running a good restaurant, Steve is cordially inviting you to drop in and say hello. Open for breakfast and lunch 6 a.m. to 4 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays. Home made soups and pies are among the many specialties that are making many new friends and patrons for the new owner. Construction is moving right along on the new addition of the VILLA HOTEL, which is now an integral part of JOE GREENBACH'S sprawling Villa Square. Willie Shoemaker was recently spotted enjoying dinner with a party of friends at the VILLA CHARTER. A gala 60th wedding anniversary celebration was held at the Sons of Italy Hall in San Francisco for JOE and ANGELINA MONTALBANO, the parents of "MONTH MONTALBANO," host owner of MONTH'S SEAFOOD restaurant in Menlo Park.

Finocchio's show matchless value

FINOCCHIO'S, famed San Francisco nightspot, always offers matchless entertainment and great value. The Finocchio EYE-ETTES, the talented chorus line, opens, closes and generally rounds out the four shows nightly, each different and exciting. Open nightly except Mondays. VINCE'S Seafood and Italian restaurant is a convenient choice for lunch and dinner. There's also counter service for those in a hurry. Fresh fish to take home is available at the Fresh Seafood Depot, adjacent to the restaurant. One of the popular dinner specialties at HILIE'S THE FRANKFURT German and continental restaurant in Moss Beach is Ungarisch or Gulasch mit Noodles. All of the authentic home-cooked food is prepared by Owner chef HILIE SCHOLTZ from her own old-world recipes. Every night is like New Year's Eve at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB in the heart of San Francisco's glittering Geary Street Theater Row, where guests are treated to a steady stream of show biz celebrities. JOYANELLO'S restaurant in San Francisco is a favorite meeting spot with people from around the Bay Area. Many from the local area drop by after a hard day's work for cocktails and stay on to enjoy a gourmet dinner.

Duck a l'Orange is Dal Baffo pleaser

An intimate dinner for two is often highlighted by choice of Duck a l'Orange (for two) as the main course at the casually elegant DAL BAFFO European restaurant in Menlo Park. Twenty-four hours advance notice is required. A pledge to carry on in 1980 the tradition of fine quality food at moderate prices with attentive service comes from NICK and TERRAIN GUST and son CHUCK. They own operate NICK'S THE MOONRAKER, and CAPTAIN CHARLES (now open following the holidays) at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant in Redwood City was the festive setting for a recent dinner party of physicians. You can choose from a number of tasty combinations at LA PINATA Mexican restaurant in Burlingame. A bright interior and Spanish guitar music create an atmosphere of sunny Mexico. If you're taking advantage of the year-end sales, you'll find LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco a convenient place to stop for luncheon or dinner. It's a garden in full bloom, close to Union Square.

Ray Plunkett's vacation spot

RAY PLUNKETT'S TAHOE MARINER, situated on North Lake Tahoe's scenic shores, is an ideal winter or summer vacation spot. It's only a short drive from the Bay Area on good highways. The Champagne Sunday Brunch served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at THE CYPRESS HOUSE in Half Moon Bay is fast becoming a new tradition under the new ownership and operating policy of HAEKUN CHOI. A tasteful touch during the brunch is the background music of ANN KELLEY YASINITSKY on flute and RICHARD PATTERSON on classical guitar. Any day, seven days a week, the door of ROMANO'S restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, opens at 4 p.m. to welcome you to a small world of Italian delights, pizzas oozing with delicious ingredients and libations of your choice. If you overdid it at the dinner table during the holidays, PHIL LEHR has just what it takes to get your waistline back into shape. At his elegant Pay-By-Ounce Steakery, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, steaks are cut to order — any size — so you can have just the right size steak to suit your appetite. The dinner is billed according to the weight of the steak.

More and more single mothers want notice of child's birth

By GEORGE GOLDING

"A birth is an event whether the mother is married or not," commented Melody Holiday, who reports births for Stanford University Medical Center.

More and more often, listings of births at local hospitals name only the mother. "DOE, Jane," or "SMITH, Mary."

Even a few years ago, newspapers would have assumed these were unwed mothers, and would not have printed the names, if they got them in the first place.

Hospitals would have "protected" the new mothers and children, and would not have listed the names on published birth notices.

But during the decade of the seventies, a lot of things changed, including the way unmarried mothers feel about admitting they gave birth to a child.

"I used to leave them out," said Ms. Holiday, "until one mother phoned and threatened to sue me for not including her name on the list of new parents."

"She said I was discriminating against her." Other hospitals have gone through the same experience, and so have newspapers.

Whereas only two or three years ago newspapers listed new children as "born to Mr. and Mrs.," births are now more simply recorded as "born to."

The person named continues to have a choice over whether mother's name, father's name, both or neither, is listed for publication, according to hospital rules.

So far as is known, no new mother has yet asked that the father be listed and that she not be named, but apparently nearly every other combination of naming names and assigning pride or responsibility has been tried.

Hospital aides say that sometimes the unwed mothers ask that the man be named also, even though he has not admitted fatherhood.

"This whole thing is a very sticky matter," said one hospital aide who handles birth listings.

"If it were up to me, if I were in that position, I would simply choose not to have the names listed, but the young mothers feel differently now. There is a change in attitudes."

"We can tell from the admission papers whether they are married or not, and when the question of listing the parents comes up, we give them a choice of how they want the names listed."

"Usually, if they are not married and they want both mother and father named, we give them a couple days to work it out. It is our feeling that all this is done by joint agreement, when both names are used."

Those who work with listings believe, they say, that most of the single mothers listed — but not all — are actually unmarried.

A few, however, are choosing to use their maiden name rather than their married one.

Just where this trend will go, no one cares to predict.

It is something that grew out of the women's lib and independence movements of the seventies.

As a facet of human behavior, it seems to fascinate and amaze those who are old enough to remember when a child born "out of wedlock" was listed that way on official birth records.

"I feel it is a lessening of morals," one hospital birth record aide said, "but the younger people say it's just the way things are, that everything is natural."

"They do not think anything about it."

James V. Fitzgerald Marine Reserve becomes a type of 'endangered species'

County Supervisors Wednesday adopted a new policy to govern the naming of parks and park facilities.

Ironically, the action came minutes after veteran Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald was inducted as chairman for the board for 1980. Fitzgerald is the only supervisor to have had a park named after him — the James V. Fitzgerald Marine Reserve on the Coastside.

The new policy gives the responsibility for naming all park facilities "and units" with the Parks and Recreation Commission.

The commission is to follow these criteria:

- A name for a park may be chosen to acknowledge a dominant or unique physical or historical feature.
- People may be remembered in recognition of their special service to San Mateo County "when appropriate."

• If the facility or unit is donated, the commission will have the option to name it after the donor with the donor's approval, but is not obligated to name a facility after the donor.

He puts the 'pique' into exhibits

By ARVILLE FINACOM

If you attended the Dresden, Tut or Shakespeare exhibitions last year, you probably noticed that each had a story line which made them more than collections of artifacts being exhibited together.

Two permanent Bay Area exhibitions, the San Francisco Wine Museum and the "Walk Across California" at the Oakland Museum, contain similar story threads. Both were devised by exhibit designer Gordon Ashby, whose talent will be in evidence locally soon.

Ashby also drew the plans for the permanent exhibit, "The Place Called San Mateo," to be installed in the Coyote Point Museum being built currently in Coyote Point Park, San Mateo.

Ashby, whose designer credits include the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio and the American Museum of Natural History in New York, styles himself a "designer in search of a client."

Rather than simply accepting a commission to design, Ashby seeks out groups whose stories he would like to tell.

An exhibit designer's story telling stance puts him in the role of interpreter between the know-all-about-the-field professionals and the know-little-about-the-area general public.

A good exhibit designer, through his work, can popularize a concept and pique the public's curiosity about it, as well as generate a heightened awareness of it.

In the same manner, a good exhibit designer can organize, illustrate and simplify a message to a point where special study is not needed for adequate interpretation.

If one is interpreting a "shared fantasy," as Ashby puts it, the designer's intellectual and emotional tie to the story being told guarantees its truthfulness. Once the idea is set, design process begins. Ashby considers process a simple skill which can be both learned and perfected: "The more you do, the better you become at telling the story."

Ashby, whose design organization includes researchers, photographers, graphic artists, writer and model builders, works out of a converted barn in Inverness, Marin County. Focal point is a photo and note-covered "development wall," actually an interaction device, on which any one of the numerous people involved can add materials and comments at any time.

The use of the wall not only insures that everyone concerned knows all there is to know about the project at any given time, it also facilitates ease in generalizations leading to design decisions which emerge seemingly spontaneously as ties between various parts of the whole become clear.

Since Ashby works solely with an idea from beginning to end, there is neither pre-conceived form nor set goal.

"All is process, a moving toward."

The development or design wall allows for maximum interaction and evaluation along the way. But all is not so nebulous as might appear. There is both a goal — story telling — and a form — the best method for telling the specific story. The goal is one shared by the designer and his client. The form becomes the designer's creation but must be accepted by the client.

In discussing his work, Ashby likes to differentiate among kinds of museums. There are private ones with highly knowledgeable curators and staffs designed for "the preservation and care of artifacts" and organized for "the study of such artifacts." Then there are the so-called "public" museums which spring up in small towns and large cities whenever anyone gets "roots-conscious" and starts to collect and preserve relics of the past. Most of these grow randomly, are housed inadequately, and invite visitors to view their disorganized clutter with little guidance.

the environment beyond species identification. It will be a set of glasses to view each of the interfaces between climate, geography, man and other living creatures of the area. It will show the extent to which man is impacting the local environment, in some cases beneficially, in others, not. It will set a tone by exploring the concepts of nature in relation to man's impact upon them.

Ashby, who admits to great concern about "what man is doing with his environment," found the basic goal of the Coyote Point Museum Association of "increasing public environmental awareness" much to his liking. "We shared the same fantasy," he says, using the term to indicate a dream waiting for realization. In his first interaction with CPMA board members, he explored the shared dream, then codified it in print and visual media.

Ashby lays heavy stress on concrete codification, insisting that all dream participants put their thoughts on paper.

"There's no 'no rapping to infinity,'" he says. "Besides," he continues, "Writing down or drawing what you dream not only imparts an intrinsic reality to the dream, it forces one to be specific, in effect, more articulate."

The next step is to test the dream against the feasibility of reality. Since fantasy and reality mean different things to different people, a process of re-dreaming, re-codifying and re-testing the idea follows until a line of compromise is reached: "This much we can do."

In the case of a museum being built specifically to house an exhibit, as is the case of CPM, the next step involves an architect. What housing form is essential to the exhibit? In CPM, varying levels within the exhibit area were necessary to indicate the dynamic movement of water flowing downhill.

What other areas need to be included? Classrooms? Auditorium? Offices? Workshop? Quiet rest areas? The same process of testing the dream against reality re-occurs until a "place" emerges.

Ashby somewhat facetiously comments that the "cost figure," measured against the availability of "green energy" in the form of "guaranteed dollars," is the final design determiner. Beyond exhibit completion, fabrication and "grand opening" lies what Ashby calls an "energy sink" in exhibit interpretation. Some exhibitions handle this in the form of printed or taped comments that exhibit viewers can carry with them to enhance understanding. But Ashby agrees with most other designers who feel that by far the most effective method to enhance a "story telling" design is to use docents, people trained not only to understand the concepts the exhibit explores, but also to relate them in relatively simple terms to those who visit the exhibition as well as to provide access to more in-depth learning opportunities for those who desire them. CPM hopes to have a fully trained corps of docents including a number of North County residents available at all times.

Three in Order

Ray Thurman, grand knight of Marian Council No. 3773, Knights of Columbus, Daly City, reports that three candidates recently received their admission degrees into the order.

The three new members are Jesus Luna, Juan Ruiz and Joseph Flores.

The new members were recruited as part of the "Bishop Greco Membership Campaign" and received their degree in his honor.

Bishop Charles P. Greco has been the supreme chaplain of the Order for 18 years, a priest for 60 years, a member of the Order for 60 years, a bishop for 33 years, and a state chaplain for 25 years.

Founder's Day

The Millbrae Woman's Club will celebrate the 27th anniversary of Founders' Day Jan. 15 at the Brentwood Lodge, 101 Brentwood Drive, South San Francisco.

Past presidents will be greeted by President Mrs. Frank Coturri and entertained by Shannon Quinn Manini's group "The Trumpeters."

The luncheon will be preceded by a business meeting at 10:45 a.m. All members and guests can attend.

On Jan. 21, Mr. Coturri is calling a "Reports Workshop" to be held at 10:30 a.m. at the Moose Lodge, 280 El Camino Real, San Bruno. Persons should bring a bag lunch (coffee and dessert will be furnished), a portable typewriter (if available), and carbon paper.

Tennis clinics

One-day tennis clinics for specific strokes and game strategy — plus individual instruction — will be offered in Daly City during January and February.

The clinics will be at the Westlake Tennis Courts on Tuesdays from noon to 1:30 and at the Margate Tennis Complex on Thursdays from noon to 1:30 and 6 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Fees are $2 for residents and $3 for non-residents for each class. Payments will be accepted only at the beginning of each class.

According to instructor Diana O'Connor, the class will meet for 11 weeks from 7 to 10 p.m.

Those planning to attend can register at the first class meeting.

Animal Forum

Question:

Is there a law that limits the number of cats people can have in their house? I'm asking this question because some people down the street from us befriend every stray cat and have at least 10 cats hanging around waiting to be fed. The cats have some loud fights at night and wake us up.

Answer:

Regarding local laws,

M.G.

the humane society can probably be helpful to you. I would suggest that you call them. Perhaps they can relocate the stray cats and solve the problem in that manner.

Of course, the basic problem is still the overpopulation of cats.

If people only realized the amount of suffering that the average stray cat endures as he searches for food and shelter, they would not hesitate to have their cats sterilized.

Question:

Is it okay to serve a dog raw fish if it's boned? What can it do to him, if anything?

V.C.

Answer:

I do not recommend feeding any raw fish or meat to dogs unless you are very knowledgeable about nutrition. Your dog will not get a balanced diet if you are feeding him scraps such as raw fish.

The best diet for normal healthy dogs is a commercially prepared, nutritionally balanced and complete ration, either dry, canned or semi-moist. Every extra table scrap and hand-out added to this diet upsets the balance and could result in health problems for your pet. Some fish contain an enzyme which can destroy certain vitamins which your dog requires for good health.

They also act as intermediate host for certain tapeworms and dithylobothrium latum and flukes (nanophytus salmnicola).

The flukes carried by salmon and trout in Northern California and Oregon carry rickettsial agents, neorickettsiae helminthoeca and elokomin, a fluke fever agent responsible for salmon poisoning and elokomin fluke fever in dogs ingesting infected fish.

WARNING: Don't mess around with a Gaboon viper if you want to make it to your golden years. These super venomous reptiles have two-inch fangs and have been known to bite themselves when there's nothing else to bite.

A six-foot specimen in the Philadelphia Zoo was found dead in its cage in 1963 with its fangs deeply imbedded in its own back. What a way to go!

HARD TO BELIEVE: We have all heard that whales "talk" to each other. One record-breaking whale, a female, would have had no difficulty "communicating" because her tongue weighed 4.73 tons.

She also was very "big-hearted" — her ticker weighed 1,540 pounds. Whale experts said if she had been pregnant when she was landed at a whaling station in 1911, she would have weighed 200 tons — or the equivalent of 25 elephants!

VISITS KOREA

Navy Ship's Serviceman Seaman Apprentice Earl M. Escalante, son of Leo M. Escalante of 37 Vendome St., Daly City, recently visited Pusan, Korea.

He is a crewmember aboard the aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea, home ported in Alameda, and operating as a unit of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

The port call was the ship's first overseas stop after departing for a Western Pacific deployment Nov. 26. During the remainder of the cruise, the Coral Sea will be participating in several training exercises with other 7th Fleet units and ships of allied nations. Port visits will be made in various Far Eastern countries.

The Coral Sea is 979 feet long with a crew of 2,710 officers and enlisted men. She can accommodate 1,800 personnel and 75 aircraft assigned to an attack aircraft wing.

A 1975 graduate of Serramonte High School, Escalante joined the Navy in November 1978.
